

THE McNAMARA TRIAL IN SESSION AT LOS AN

General view of Judge Bordwell's court, as it looks in action, caught by Staff Photographer Larkin. Judge Bordwell, a venieman under examination, and the court reporter are at the extreme right of the picture. Ranged around the attorneys' table are Deputy District Attorney Joseph Ford (leaning back directly below Judge Bordwell), District Attorney J. D. Fredericks, opposite. Deputy District Attor-

"I LOVE THE GOVERNMENT AND ALWAYS STRIVE TO UPH CIVIL WAR VETERAN TO DISTRICT ATTORME

George W. Morton, Aged Civil War Veteran Angered by State's Question, Did He oppose the Government—Court and Defense Again Clash.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 7.—One of the most bitter fights since the McNamara trial today was lost by the defense attorneys, when Judge Bordwell sustained the state's challenge of George W. Morton, an aged civil war veteran.

After a long examination of the talesman by Deputy States Attorney Horton, during which much stress was laid on Morton's socialistic tendencies, Horton announced his challenge, on the ground that Morton was "neither mentally or physically fit." Attorneys Darrow and Davis for the defense hotly protested, but were overruled.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 7.—The attitude of the court and attorneys when the trial was resumed today, indicated that sensational developments in the McNamara case are imminent.